

Stephanie Norton
Executive Administrator
E-Mist Innovations, Inc.

My passion for the development and execution of operations at the highest levels of excellence has matured from over fifteen years of commitment to a wide range of professional teams within multiple industries and markets. I have experienced the need of simplification within highly complex global operations and the demands of competition within regional, state and local commercial markets as well. Within each opportunity, the application of advanced planning skills, P&L management, legal risk mitigation and market-facing analysis has delivered and enhanced operational environments that exceed stakeholder and colleague expectations.

Today, my attention is focused on the development and growth of technology startup companies where maximizing available resources and solidifying operational best practices are critical to both survival and success. I operate within a very senior executive team that is bringing surface disinfection and global public health out of the dark ages via mobile, precise, data driven liquid application technologies and systems that are only possible with disruptive innovation via electrostatics and advanced antimicrobial chemistries.
